Manuscript Fragments
The Hidden Library
Erich Renhart
Zadar
Summer School 2011

www.vestgia.at
The Manuscript Research Centre of Graz University
1. The object:
   what is a manuscript fragment?

2. The state of the art:
   what is already done?

3. The projects:
   what is on the way?

4. The aims:
   what do we want to learn when we are going to study fragments?

5. The experiences:
   which problems did emerge, what results do we have?
Graz, University Library
Latin fragments
late Carolingian style
Diocesan Archive, Graz
Envelope of an ecclesiastical register book
Vienna, Mechitharist Library
Vienna, Mechitharist Library
Box of detached fragments
Vienna, Mechitharist Library
Part of a bifolium with the ancient Erkathagir script and a late interlinear transliteration
Yerevan, Matenadaran
Fragment of a Syriac manuscript
Yerevan, Matenadaran
Fragment of a Syriac manuscript
Yerevan, Matenadaran
In situ fragment of a Syriac manuscript
Diyarbakir
Fragments of Syriac manuscripts
Diyarbakir (Amida)/Turkey Syriac and Karshuni fragment, front page indicating the contents of the book Diyarbakir/Turkey
A Syriac fragment on the book cover